LOCAL PLANT TO BEGIN WORK ON NEW ADDITION

Macbeth-Evans to Construct Building at Eighth Street

FOR USE AS WAREHOUSE

Will Ask Council to Allow Temporary Tracks to be Laid for Shipping

When council meets tonight it will likely be greeted with a request from the Macbeth-Evans Glass company, to allow it to construct temporary railroad tracks for the hauling of material with which to construct a proposed new building on ground recently purchased. The new building, which is to be part of a proposed addition, will be on the south side of Eighth street.

Some time ago the Macbeth-Evans Glass company and council entered into agreements by which the company was to purshase that portion of Eighth street, leading from the railroad track to the river. When the title was investigated, it was learned that it would take some work to clear it. Attorneys for the glass concern are now working on this matter and when a satisfactory title can be secured, then the company will consumate the deal. Meanwhile, urged on by the great need of additional room to carry on the increasing business, it was found necessary to construct a part of the proposed building. Its' dimensions, if the present plans are followed out, will be 50 by 200 feet.

The new building will be used as a warehouse, allowing room in the old building for an increase to the tank department Additional facilities will mean increased capacity, and increased capacity, an increase to the working force.

GRAND JURY CALLED TO CONSIDER BRIDGE

OLD SITE FAVORED BY BOOMERS FROM VALLEY

The members of the May grand jury who were recalled to Washington yesterday to take action on the approval of the report of viewers on the Brownsville bridge, after listening to testimony yesterday afternoon adjourned until today when a trip was scheduled by automobile to the proposed site as reported by the viewers. After inspecting the site the jury will return to Washington and report its findings, which will have to be either approval or disapproval of the report of the viewers. Of the 24 members of the grand jury 19 reported yesterday and this morning at 8:30 o'clock they started to Brownsville. The county commisioners accompanied the members of the grand jury.

All of the witnesses examined yesterday were of the opinion that this bridge was absolutely nesessary as the ferries there could not handle the crowds that passed over the river there daily. It was also shown that the traffic across the river at that point was greater than at any point along the river with the exception of the Smithfield street bridge in Pittsburg.

MURDER SUSPECT IS UNDER ARREST

Coroner Investigating Victim of Wild Orgie at Bentleyville Sunday

On an information made at Bentleyville charging murder, Joseph Loos was on Monday taken to Monongahela and locked up at that place pending a further investigation into the death of George Morascy whose fatal stabbing Sunday was the climax of one of the wildest days in the history of Bentleyville. The inquest into the death of Morascy was held in the Scurfield undertaking rooms at Monongahela this morning.

Coroner James Heffran spent considerable time in Bentleyville Monday taking evidence in connection with the trouble which culminated in the killing of Morascy. As a result of what he learned he went before Justice M. L. Grubbs and made an information against Loos charging murder. Loos was already under arrest having been captured immediately after the stabbing occurred.

The trouble had its start when big quantities of beer began coming in on Saturday following the regular pay day. Just what was the trouble between Loos and Morascy has not yet come to light. The tragedy occurred in House No. 82 at Weaver and it is alleged that Loos, when the fight was at its height drew a long knife and plunged it twice into the body of Morascy. One wound passed through the left lung, while the second time the steel entered the side just below the heart. Despite his mortal hurts the dying man crawled a quarter of a mile to his boarding house. He was attended by Dr. N. A. Booth and Dr. Emmett Black and rushed to the Me-

TEACHERS MUST BE EXAMINED

School Code Provides for Medical Certificate

CHANGES FORMER SYSTEM

Under the new school code which is now a law no teacher shall be granted a teacher's certificate without first undergoing a medical examination and presenting the medical certificate to the county superintendent before taking the test for certificate. Section 1320 of the new code reads as follows:

"No teacher's certificate shall be granted to any person who has not submitted upon a blank furnished by the superintendent of public instruction, a certificate from a physician legally qualified to practice medicine in this commonwealth, setting forth that said applicant is neither mentally nor physically disqualified by reason of tuberculosis, or any other chronic or acute defect, from successful performance of the duties of a teacher; nor to any person who has not a good moral character, or who is in the habit os using opium or other narcotic drugs in any form or any intoxicating drink as a beverage."

The blank certificates for such medical examinations have been received at the county superintendent's office. Already two examinations have been held and the teachers who took these tests will be required to undergo the medical examination and forward the blank to the superintendent before their certificates entitling them to teach in the schools of this county can be issued.

WOMAN SOLD BOOZE TO SUPPORT CHILDREN

Pathetic Case Comes Up at County Court—Judge Paroles Prisoner

A very pathetis case was before the court at Washington Monday when Mrs. Lilly McCune of Donora, admitted selling liquor without license and on Sunday. Mrs McCune, who is a rather good looking woman, stated that she made these sales in order to save her two little boys, aged six and eight years, from starving. She said that she became ill about two years ago of rheumatism, the disease affecting one hand to such an extent that she could not wash or iron or do housework. She said she had to do something or starve, and she had permitted beer to be brought to her home and had sold some. She said she worked when she was able. Neighbors are looking after her children since she has been in jail. Her husband is dead.

No sentence was pronounced upon her, the court instructing the district attorney to make some further inquiry in the premises. Later in the day a porole was granted the woman, the costs being put on the county. Mrs. N. E. Harris, one of the Donora juvenile court committee, of Donora, agreed to act as parole officer.

GETTING BEHIND TAFT.

While President Taft has refused to yield a point in his battle for reciprocity he has been doing more than any one man in the nation to wield together the conflicting elements in the Republican party. President Taft has refused to abandon his original proposition for the Canadian agreement without amendment or change. He has served notice upon all concerned that his political future does not interest him and that declaration has assembled about him courageous men from every section of the country who have assumed the responsibility for the President's political future.

Even the insurgents have been dropping into line regularly and only within a few days United States Senators Boise Penrose who has charge of the President's battle for the reciprocity pact has been notified by no less than five insurgent senators that in the future they will be good politically. The original purpose of the insurgents was to nominate Senator La Follette if possible.

The courage of the President in defying not only a part of his own party but the entire insurgent contingent has destroyed all the plans of the political disturbers and largely in the interest of their own political futures they have proclaimed their allegience to President Taft and his party.

So far the Democrats have not succeeded in making much headway in grinding out campaign material through their power in the lower House of Congress. Now that the lines in the Republican party have been closed up by the insurgents abandoning their fight the situation looks better for the Republicans from a political standpoint than it has looked far two years.

HOPE IN COKE.

The formation of a coal and coke company for the purpose of developing the Lilley tract near California cannot help but work to the advantage of Charleroi. When this company is in operation it will employ a large number of people to whom Charleroi will become more or less of a trading center. In addition to this the owners and operators are local people, and the plant will not be dependent upon the caprices of the market upon other holdings of a large corporation with many interests at stake in various parts of the country.

It is to be hoped that the new company will engage in the manufacture of coke and other by-products of bituminous mining. There is little profit today in the mining of bituminous coal, and the extremely small margin realized by operators who mine large contracts at approximately cost and realize a small degree of profit on small and transient contracts, makes the mining situation more or less precarious with shut-downs imminent at all times. There is some profit in coke, and the manufacture of this product would employ more people than the ordinary mining of coal. The greatest hope of the Monongahela valley is the time when coke manufacture will be inaugurated, and it is possible that the new concern may take advantage of this opportunity and become a pineer of the coke industry in this community.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Speaking of opportunities for bright boys who will make an effort to "make good" and really take an interest in their work, George S. Might said:

"I have had boys and boys, hordes of them, in my newspaper delivery business, and it is the hardest thing in the world to get them to attend to business and deliver the papers accurately and regularly. As soon as I found one reliable I made his head boy, to look after the others and see that they performed their duties. As I have been in the business along time my head boys have naturally advanced, until today I can count a number of them who hold responsible pasitions in the business world.

"One of them is a manager of a dry goods store. Another has a drug store of his own and is a bank director besides. One is here in Charleroi, local manager of a big corporation, and another has just started in the news and book business in another town for himself. It is the hardest matter in the world to get reliable boys, and the ones who make good in delivering newspapers have, in my experience, advanced right along in the business world."

"When the Monongahela river slackwater system was taken over by the government, a commission of civilians was appointed to hold hearings and take testimony for the transfer," remarked a prominent business man of the valley, in a conversation relative to business opportunities that exist at the present time. "On that commision was one of the Dilworths of Pitsburg, I don't just remember his initials. Mr. Dilworth was a prominent business man and took a leading part in the proceedings Another member of the commission was a Fayette county citizen, a man named Thompson, who sat around and didn't say much, while Dilworth did the most of the talking. A few years later a friend of Dilworth's met him one day and said:

"'I was up at Uniontown the other day and met a friend of yours who inquired about you. His name is Thompson, J. V. Thompson, and he's gotten very rich by the sale of coal lands. He says he served on that commission with you before the government took over the slackwater system of the Monongahela. That gave him a tip, as he figured that the taking off of the river toll would make a substantial advance per acre in coal lands. So he went back home and bought all the coal he could at a low figure, and has gotten enormously wealthy.'

"'The idea,' exclaimed Mr. Dilworth. 'I ought to have seen that opportunity myself. I remember that when the commission was held I did all the talking, and Thompson sat for the most part with his hat pulled down over his eyes, figuring with an old stub of a pencil on the back of an envelope. He saw the chance which I let slip and got rich. I never got a d——d cent out of the whole business.'"

It may be remarked in passing that J. V. Thompson is now a multimillionaire and ranks in the John D. Rockefeller and J. Pierpont Morgan class.

Beallsville

The marriage last week of Miss Queene Sharp and John Leonard came as a surprise to many of the people of the community. Thursday evening at the Sharp home a reception was held in honor of the young couple and on Friday evening a kitchen shower was given them by Mr. and Mrs Leonard.

This week on Thursday in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Linton, will be solemnized the marriage of Miss Lauretta Linton and Wiliam Sanford Stroud, two well known young people of the community A large number of invitations have been sent out.

The new station for Bentleyville will materialize soon, it is stated. Representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad company have been there the last week, making the necessary arrangements for the new structure which will cost in the neighborhood of $7,000. The station is needed very badly and some action was taken a few months since in hopes of securing the new building. Heretofore an old box car was used as a result much pilfering was done.

The date set for the Bentleyville camp meting is from August 18th to the 28th both dates inclusive. The campmeetings at Bentleyville have been held since the close of the Civil war and are always largely attended by people from all parts of the county The metings are held under the auspices of the Union Holiness Association.

Bentleyville next year will have the convention of the Epworth League. The delegates from Beallsville were Rev. H. C. Millington, Mrs. J. E. Richardson, Mrs B. M. Crouch.

H. H. Dawson of Beallsville of the firm of Dawson & Young, marble and granite company met with a most distressing accident at the home of his son-in-law, I. N. Young, Saturday when he lost the thumb of his left hand. His other hand was also badly injured.

Manganese and Its Uses.

Manganese is one of the substances which had long been used in the arts before its existence as an independent metal was recognized. From prehistoric times it was employed as a coloring material, but it was not known to be a distinct metal until 1774. In India the primitive smiths used it as a flux and as an alloy for holding iron and bronze. Today its power as an oxidizer, rendering it a most important disinfectant, and its value as a chemical reagent, as well as its increasing use as an alloy, caused an active search to be made for its ores. It is widely distributed, forming about one-thousandth of the substance of the earth's crust.

Ancient Rome's Libraries.

The libraries of ancient Rome were immense and splendid. Lucullus, whose name is associated with table luxuries, expended much of his wealth on books. His library, says Plutarch, had "walks, galleries and cabinets open to all visitors." Julius Caesar proposed to open this library definitely to the public.

How were these vast libraries, in addition to the book shops, filled? With his trained staff of readers and transcribers, a publisher could turn out an edition of any work at very cheap rates, and almost at a moment's notice. There was no initial expense of typesetting before a single copy could be produced, no ruinous extras in the shape of printers' corrections. The manuscript came from the author; the publisher handed it over to his slaves, and if a book of modest dimensions, the complete edition could be ready, if necessary, within twenty-four hours. Actually, then, books were produced and sold more easily and quickly in ancient Rome than they are in modern London.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

The "Iliad" Not a Myth.

The fall of Troy after a ten year siege by the Grecian princes about 1184 B. C. has long been considered as a rather mythical foundation for Homer's immortal epic, the "Iliad." But in 1876 the excavations of Schliemann on the reputed site of Troy brought to light under the ashes of two superincumbent fortress cities the remains answering to the descriptions of Homer and a hidden vault containing goblets, bowls, vases, gems, jewels, armes de luxe and like articles in gold, silver and bronze. These treasures are now generally acknowledged to be the veritable remnants of the once vast riches of Priam, which, although depleted by ten years of costly warfare in the purchase of supplies and mercenaries and the final sack of the ruined city, were thus preserved to enrich the museums of Europe and greatly increase our realization of the wealth and art of that ancient Ilium, which we have hitherto been disposed to consider a poet's dream.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

A Bit Thick.

Parisians drink scarcely any water other than mineral water. The Seine water has a shocking reputation.

John Raphael, Paris correspondent for several London papers, said that one afternoon a pretty actress met her doctor at a dress rehearsal in a boulevard theater.

"Look here," she said, "I am quite sure that all this mineral water I drink, since you have forbidden wine, is dreadfully bad for me. I want your permission to drink filtered Seine water now."

"Very well," replied the doctor, "if you insist. But, mind, you must chew it well."

Work of the Locomotive Fireman.

To a husky young man shoveling twenty tons of coal a day may not sound like a terrible undertaking, but that is because he fails to appreciate the difference between shoveling that quantity in the course of a ten hour day, standing on a steady footing and pausing for a moment whenever he feels like it to gaze at the scenery or light a cigarette and trying to keep his balance on a jolting, jerking, plunging steel deck which tries ceaselessly to pitch him head first into the side of the cab, while with legs spread wide apart he humps over a scoop shovel, working with frantic energy to get coal into the firebox fast enough to keep steam up. While the engine is running the fireman must be straddled out on the deck, working continually to the limit of his strength, for ordinarily he will have to get from two and a half to three tons of coal into the firebox every hour. Three and a half tons is generally regarded as the limit of a fireman's capacity, but this has been greatly exceeded on the fastest trains.—Technical World Magazine.

The Music of Birds.

Birds are usually accounted the most musical of animals, yet it is very much of a task to set their notes to music. The reason is that birds are utterly negligent of the laws of harmony. There is not one of them, it is safe to say, that knows the difference between a major third and a dominant chord. This deficiency in musical knowledge is rather surprising when we consider how beautifully the birds sing and may be used as an argument to show that a theoretical knowledge is a humbug. But if birds knew more about harmony their songs could all be set down and quite a decent revenue derived from the sale thereof. Another reason why it is difficult to put the melody of the song birds into notes is that the quality of the tone is unlike any musical instrument. This is true of all birds except the thrush, whose song descends for the first three notes in perfect seconds and with much purity of tone.—From Old Scrap Book.

The Earliest Cold Storage.

In Macaulay's essay on "Lord Bacon" he points out that in 1626 the subject of his memoir tried the experiment of stuffing a fowl with snow to prevent it from putrefying and in carrying out the work caught cold, from which he died. Macaulay adds: "In the last letter that he ever wrote, with fingers which, as he said, could not steadily hold a pen, he did not omit to mention that the experiment of the snow had succeeded excellently well." If, however, we turn to nature there are instances in Siberia of mammoths preserved in ice so that their flesh is still eatable from a period probably coeval with the first appearance of man on this globe. If the Romans brought to their banquets the dainties of the known world, had they not some knowledge of cold storage?—E. H. Hill in London Spectator.

The Misuse of Vinegar.

Dr. Mansell Maullin, M. A., writing in the London Lancet on the causes of gastric ulcer, mentions vinegar as one cause. "In many of these instances, especially those which occur in young women, the effect of this chronic septic poisoning is intensified by the habit so many of them have of swallowing quantities of vinegar. Information with regard to this is very difficult to obtain and is never volunteered. It has to be drawn out bit by bit, but I have met with many instances in which a pint a day has been consumed and a few in which the quantity was occasionally much larger. The effect is probably greater because it is often taken between meals on an empty stomach under the curious impression that it will improve the complexion."

Drilled to Perfection.

From drill man gets accustomed to doing under any circumstances what has been hammered into his brain time after time till it becomes second nature to him. Charles XII. of Sweden, "the madman of the north," ripped most of Europe up the back again and again because his soldiers were drilled to perfection before he let them take the field at a time when there was great neglect of drill in other armies. He valued 1,000 well drilled fighters above 10,000 not so well drilled, and, madman or genius, his judgment was vindicated repeatedly in terrible battles. One night Charles XII. was surprised in Poland by an attacking army of 8,000 when his scant force of 600 was sleeping like the dead from the exhaustion of a hard march. Before his outposts and sentinels could be driven in his small band was aroused, mounted, formed in battle line—all in pitchy blackness—and swinging into a fierce charge upon the enemy. By daylight the Russians and Poles, who had thought to eat him up, were virtually annihilated.—New York Press.

Dr. Johnson's Revenge.

Osborne, irritated by what he thought an unnecessary delay on the part of Johnson, went one day into the room where Johnson was sitting and abused him in the most liberal manner. Johnson heard him some time unmoved, but at last, losing all patience, he seized a huge folio and, aiming a blow at the bookseller's head, succeeded in sending him sprawling to the floor. Osborne alarmed the family by his cries, but Johnson, placing his foot on his breast, would not let him stir until he had exposed him in that situation and then left him with this triumphant expression: "Lie there, thou son of dullness, ignorance and obscurity."—From Kearsley's "Anecdotes."

Those Wedding Celebrations.

"It's a ridiculous idea," a man who has been married eleven months tomorrow confided to us, "to celebrate your diamond wedding when you have been married seventy-five years. I'm going to have it reversed. The diamond wedding should come first, then the golden, and so on. Let's have these things while they do us some good."

He is right at that. And yet social custom is going to compel this impecunious couple to celebrate their paper wedding next month. They need a few rugs and gold pieces, but somebody will bring 'em writing paper and a new deck of cards.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Entertaining Royalty.

Nothing puts a bigger feather in the cap of a society hostess, says the London Saturday Journal, or at the same time causes her more anxious cares and thought rather than mere expenditure than the presence at one of her dinners or dances in the huge Mayfair mansion of a member of the royal family—most of all the king and queen. The entertaining of royalty is one of the most delicate triumphs the society woman, whether she be a duchess or merely a millionairess, can achieve. It has a code of etiquette all to itself—a code which must be rigidly observed or no hope is there of ever securing another visit from a royal guest of the reigning house. The number of titled and untitled guests bidden to meet the sovereign at, say, a dinner party is strictly limited and of course highly select. On one occasion $20,000 was spent by a hostess in entertaining a crowned head for a week end, while another example is that of a certain baronet who had a marble staircase put in his house solely because of an approaching visit from the late king.

NESTS IN COLONIES.

The biggest bird's nest in the world, not excepting the stork's, is built by the African grosbeak. It is really 100 nests or more bound together with closely interwoven sticks, vines and strands of coarse grass and is not built by a single pair of birds, but by a colony of them. It is of such enormous size that at a little distance it is often mistaken for one of the native huts built in the trees so frequently found in wild tropical countries where man eating animals abound, and the only way to sleep in safety is to "roost high."

The birds usually select a thorn tree probably because of the protection afforded by the sharp, long thorns against marauders. All around the nest the roof of sticks, thatched with dry grass, projects to let the rain run off. A deep fringe of grass hangs from this cornice like a curtain to keep out any stray drops. These great nests are added to from year to year, each pair of mated birds building on the main nest. Sometimes the nest becomes too heavy, and the branch breaks or the great mass of sticks falls to the ground, destroyed by its own weight. The grosbeak is no larger than an English sparrow and just as gregarious.—New York Press.

Honesty Extraordinary.

A traveler writing in an Italian magazine says that the Swiss canton of Ticino is inhabited by the most honest folk it is possible to imagine. In most of the Ticinese villages, the writer says, the oldest inhabitants do not remember any case of thieving, however petty, within a lifetime. Lost objects when found must never be taken away; they must be left where they were dropped or placed in a conspicuous position so that the rightful owner can find his property more easily. The case is cited of an American woman tourist who lost her purse on an excursion in the Val Capriasca. The purse contained gold coin and a jeweled watch. Upon returning from her trip she found the purse with its contents intact on a little heap of leaves, so placed that it could not fail to attract her attention.—New York Sun.

The Parsees of India.

It was at a point near the ancient city of Surat that the Parsees first landed in India when driven out of Persia by their Mohammedan conquerors eleven centuries ago. Few things are more remarkable than the manner in which this small community has retained its religion and racial characteristics unchanged during that long period. The peculiar style of headdress worn by the Parsees is said to have been made compulsory by the Hindu king of India when the Parsees first obtained refuge in that country, and they have used it ever since. Today the Parsees are the leading commercial nation of India.

Kean and Macready.

When Edmund Kean and Macready, intense rivals, played in the same pieces at Drury Lane it was usual to consult them in the course of the evening as to what they would appear in next. One night when the prompter was sent to ask Mr. Macready what he would play with Mr Kean the great tragedian frowned upon him till he blushed. "Sir," he roared, "how should I know what the man would like to play?" The prompter retired to seek the desired information from Mr. Kean. "Sir," said Mr. Kean sharply, "how should I know what the fellow can play?"

Things Are Changed Now.

The Fourth of July, the day of our arrival at Albany, was the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and on our arrival we were told that great preparations were making for its celebration.

Our landlord, as soon as he found out who we were, immediately came to us to request that we would excuse the confused state in which his house was, as this was the anniversary day of "American independence," or, as some indeed more properly call it, "American repentance." We were all of us not a little surprised at this address, and from such a person. Instances, however, are not wanting of people openly declaring that they have never enjoyed so much quiet and happiness in their own homes since the Revolution as they did when the states were the colonies of Great Britain. Among the planters of Virginia I have heard language of this sort more than once.—From "Travels Through the States of North America," by Isaac Weld, Jr., 1795.

A Wedding Hoax.

There have been many foolish hoaxes since the days of Theodore Hook, but few so cruel as one mentioned by Bram Stoker in his book, "Famous Impostors." "A young couple were about to be married in Birmingham when those officiating were startled by the delivery of a telegram from London with the message: 'Stop marriage at once. His wife and children have arrived in London and will come on to Birmingham.' The bride fainted, and the bridegroom was frantically perturbed at thus summarily being provided with a wife and family. But it was useless—the unhappy man had to make the best of his way through an exasperated crowd, full of sympathy for the wronged girl. Inquiry, however, showed her friends that the whole thing was a hoax—possibly worked by some revengeful rival of the man whose happiness had been so unexpectedly deferred."

The Archbishop's Shirts.

One of the archbishops of Bordeaux, Mgr. de Sangay, was remarkable for his charity, giving to the poor, as he did, nearly everything in his possession. It happened at one time that he was without linen, and when his servants spoke of buying what he needed he put them off, saying always, "We will see about it." Then the good old woman in charge of his wardrobe made use of stratagem. "Monsignore," she said, "I come to ask your charity for a good work." "What is it, my good Jeanne?" "With your lordship's permission, I wish to spend some hours in which I have not much to do in making shirts for a poor old man who is sadly in need of them. Perhaps you would pay me for the stuff. Indeed, the good old man expects as much from you." "With the greatest pleasure," said the archbishop. "Here; this is all the money I have. Take it and get what you need." By this means he was provided with shirts, and he could not refrain from laughing when he learned the explanation of his faithful old servant's request.—London Globe.

The Old Time Senators.

A recent overhauling of a desk in the office of the District of Columbia health officer brought to light a small volume entitled "The Medical Register of the District," which contained a complete list of the senators of the Thirty-ninth congress, giving their weight, height and head and chest measurements. The author of the book, Dr. J. M. Toner, says in explanation of the table:

"It shows that in all the points observed our senators exceed the average of mankind in all parts of the world as well as the average of our own country."

From the figures given it appears that the tallest senators at that time came from Kentucky, the shortest from New Hampshire and West Virginia. The average height was five feet ten and a half inches, and the senatorial heads, "measured a little lower than the hat is generally worn," showed an average circumferance of twenty-two and a half inches. Fourteen of the forty senators were six feet tall.—Washington Star.

Travel at Home.

"Whenever I get the wanderlust," says the philosopher, "I get the cook to burn the steak and serve me some coffee that tastes as though it had brown pepper in it. Then I sit in the most uncomfortable chair in the house and try to read a newspaper in a poor light. I then go outdoors and let a cinder blow in my eye, then go back in and go to bed on a cot that is four inches too short and a foot too narrow for me, with covers that gather themselves about my waist and leave my feet bare, while a clever contrivance sends alternate hot and cold blasts across me. Next morning I have indigestion, a sore eye and a cold and a fine assortment of aches and pains, but I also have all the sensations of having been on a trip and am spared the worry of getting home again, for I am already there."—Life.

THE CONFEDERATE SOLDIER.

An Incident That Marked His Spirit and Independence.

In his "Glimpses of the Confederate Army" in the American Review of Reviews Randolph H. McKim writes:

"It seems to me as I look back that one of the things which stood out strongly in the Confederate army was the independence and the initiative of the individual soldier. It would have been a better army in the field if it had been welded together by a stricter discipline, but this defect was largely atoned for by the strong individuality of the units in the column. It was not easy to demoralize a body composed of men who thought and acted in a spirit of independence in battle.

"As an illustration of the spirit of the private soldier I recall an incident to this effect. Major General Gordon had organized a strong column to make a night attack on Grant's lines at Petersburg. When he was ready to move and the order to advance was given a Big Texan stepped out of the ranks and said:

"'General Gordon, this column can't move before 1 a. m. The men have a truce with the Yanks, and it ain't up till 1 o'clock.'

"The column did not move till that hour. The private in the ranks had taken command, and the major general recognized his authority."

PONGEES HARD TO MATCH.

Pongee silk is the undyed silk of silkworms fed on the leaves of scrub oak chiefly, though other trees are used in some portions of the pongee district. The silk is produced almost exclusively in Shantung province and portions of north China immediately adjacent.

The real pongee cloth, made of this uncolored specially produced silk, is distinct from the pongees of commerce made in all colors from other silk. Each piece of cloth is made from a particular lot of silk, and therefore each piece varies from all other pieces in exact quality, weight and fineness and in a slight degree in color and other qualities.

There are certain general grades of cloth, certain varieties of weave, certain popular weights, etc., but women shopping in Chinese pongees find it very difficult to match pieces, and on the face of things it is practically impossible to furnish any great number of pieces of a certain weight, grade and quality such as a modern clothing manufacturing establishment would require to standardize a certain line of garments from that particular cloth.—New York Sun

Located His Station.

There was an absentminded bishop in western Ontario, who was constantly finding himself in awkward situations, on account of his extreme abstraction. On a certain occasion he was traveling from London in a northerly direction and found when the conductor approached him that he had forgotten where he was to go. The conductor suggested that he telegraph from the next station and find out his destination. It was before the days of long distance telephones, and the bishop telegraphed to his wife from the first station, "Where was I going?" to be answered at the following station. The answer came, "Exeter; be sure to get off there." The bishop then beamed at the anxious conductor and remarked placidly: "These little difficulties always turn out satisfactorily."—Argonaut.

German Pedigree Book.

There is in Germany what is known as the "German Pedigree Book," or "Deutsches Geschlechterbuch." The purpose of the pedigree book, according to a Berlin correspondent, is to record the ancestry not of nobles, but of bourgeois persons who can prove that they are of genuine middle class or working class ancestry and have no noble blood in their veins. The editor explains in his preface that, while many German nobles "out of court and material considerations have not kept their blood pure, there are many good business class families which have managed to do so." By thus encouraging the proper pride of such families the pedigree book is doing much to eradicate the traditional envy of the nobles.

It Depends on the Dog.

Two Broadway business men met before a bar. They were good friends.

"I'm worried a little," said one. "My chauffeur ran over a dog today and killed it."

"Oh, I wouldn't worry about a little thing like that," said the other. "The dog probably got in the way. These dogs are a pest."

"But it was your dog."

"What!" came from the second. "My dog? I'm sorry, but that will cost you $100. That chauffeur of yours is too careless. I insist on the hundred, understand."—New York Telegraph.

Cross Purposes.

"Can you tell me something about the game laws around here?" asked the stranger in Crimson Gulch.

"Well," replied Three Fingered Sam, "I could, but my advice to you would be if you don't know the rules of a game don't try to play it."—Washington Star.

UNIVERSITY OF FRANCE

Essentially the Same Today as When Established by Napoleon.

In the United States there are many universities which are free from state control, but in France there is only one university, and it is an absolute instrument of the state. It is true that there are schools of higher learning, which were founded in 1870 as universities, but five years afterward the title was withdrawn, and they are now called "Instituts." They are five in number and are located in Paris, Lille, Lyons, Toulouse and Angers.

But the University of France is an entirely different organization. It is the official school. It is centralized in Paris and has under it a vast multitude of establishments, faculties, college and primary schools, distributed over the whole surface of the country. Directly or indirectly they all depend on the government.

The university was established by Napoleon, and in spite of certain modifications which it has undergone during years it is the same today in its essential elements as the day he founded it. Just as he established the entire civil administration, with its prefects, subprefects, judges, ministers of finance, so he created in 1806 this vast educational organization, with its countless professors, who control the entire intellectual training of France.—America.

Self Restraint.

"Doctor, I've come to see you about my wife. I'm afraid there's something serious the matter with her."

"I'm sorry to hear that. What are her symptoms?"

"Why, the other day, when I was out of town, she had occasion to go to my office, and there she found several letters marked 'Private' that she didn't open."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The First Comedy.

The first recorded comedy was played at Athens B. C. 578, when Susarion and Dolon, the earliest traveling actors, performed a comedy of Susarion's composition on a movable stage mounted upon four wheels. The new form of play was so successful that the actors were rewarded by the grateful populace with a cask of wine and a basket of figs. Susarion belonged to Megaris, a state of ancient Greece, whose inhabitants were celebrated for their coarse humor and who, in their villages during the evenings, were wont to hold what they called a comus, really a revel, in which impromptu acting, coupled with buffoonery, played a considerable part. From this word we have our comedy.

Getting the Exact Spot.

An emergency call from a policeman for a tape measure kept two women waiting in the dressmaker's parlor for five minutes. There were other tape measures there which the dressmaker might have used, but she was too busy pondering the circumstance that had suddenly converted her into an ally of the police department. Presently the policeman returned the tape.

"What did you want it for?" she asked.

"To help find the right place to shoot a horse with a broken leg," he said. "The vital spot is just three inches above that little swirl in his forehead where a dozen crowns seem to meet. I am not very good at guessing, so we thought it safest to find the exact spot with a tape measure."—New York Sun.

Music of the Drum.

All musical authorities have agreed that when used in a proper way the drum is thoroughly musical. The common snare or side drum is freely used in musical composition. A large number of drummers performing simultaneously out of doors produce good music. In this connection Berlioz, the composer, pointed out that a sound that was insignificant when heard singly, such as the clink of one or two muskets at shoulder arms or the thud as the butt comes to the ground at ground arms, becomes brilliant and attractive if performed by a thousand men together.

Crumpled Them.

We observe that the man's fingers are all twisted and bent into the most uncouth shapes.

"Poor fellow!" we say to our friend. "Evidently he is a victim of rheumatism."

"No," our friend explains. "He is deaf and dumb and has been trying to talk Scotch dialect on his fingers."—

PRESBYTERIANS BEAT CATHOLICS

Hitting Combined With a Bit of Luck Gets Game 5 to 4

HOW IT ALL OCCURRED

After twisting, turning, landing and pulling, that thing called luck consorted finally with the First Presbyterians Monday night and together with a few solid bingles when a few solid bingles meant more than ordinary, helped capture the game from the Catholics. First Presbyterians 5, Cathholics 4.

There might be considerable said about the game; also there might be considerable left unsaid. It looked as though the Catholics tied up the contest in the first inning, when Oates, Deitz and Newton scored on a base on balls, an error and two doubles.

But not so, Cassius. Luck sat on the Presbyterians bench next time, and Wagner and McGowan scored on a base on balls, McGowan's double and Smith's single.

After that luck sat in the grandstand awhile to watch things move. Then just for fun, he came down with the Presbyterians again. McGowan singled, and he was brought in by Provance with a double, in the fourth. In the fifth Oates scored for the Catholics. He was safe on a fielder's choice and came home on a hit by Mangan.

In the fifth the game was honest Injun won by the Presbyterians. Ruggles was safe on an error, stole second and scored on another error. Oller scored likewise. Getting first when the first baseman dropped a throw he completed the circuit on an error.

BASEBALL BINGLES

• • •

Manager Fred Pieper of the Presbyterians registered a protest on account of Newton being in the game claiming he was a professional.

• • •

• • •

Walter Urban, who is suffering from a bad ankle went in to bat for Wheeler in the seventh, plainly to get a base on balls. And he accomplished his object.

• • •

'Bob" Newton shows improved form over last year, owing to his training at Lima.

• • •

Deitz's batting stock has taken a decided slump., Out of seven times at bat in the last two games he hasn't got the sign of a hit.

• • •

• • •

Jack Mathias informed the Presbyterians that he was umpiring when they raised a noise at one of his decisions, and that if they didn't like it, they could simply make the best of it.

• • •

Newton and Buchanan captured four of the five Catholic hits.

The murder was the climax of a wild night and a still wilder day. Two christenings which were featured by fierce fights added to the terror of Sunday. In these fights many were more or less slightly injured and seven men were arrested. These seven at a hearing before Burgess W. M. Johnson of Bentleyville were all fined for disorderly conduct while two of them were fined by Justice Grubbs for assault and battery. All settled. LOCAL PLANT TO BEGIN WORK ON NEW ADDITION

FOR USE AS WAREHOUSE

Will Ask Council to Allow Temporary Tracks to be Laid for Shipping

When council meets tonight it will likely be greeted with a request from the Macbeth-Evans Glass company, to allow it to construct temporary railroad tracks for the hauling of material with which to construct a proposed new building on ground recently purchased. The new building, which is to be part of a proposed addition, will be on the south side of Eighth street.

Some time ago the Macbeth-Evans Glass company and council entered into agreements by which the company was to purshase that portion of Eighth street, leading from the railroad track to the river. When the title was investigated, it was learned that it would take some work to clear it. Attorneys for the glass concern are now working on this matter and when a satisfactory title can be secured, then the company will consumate the deal. Meanwhile, urged on by the great need of additional room to carry on the increasing business, it was found necessary to construct a part of the proposed building. Its' dimensions, if the present plans are followed out, will be 50 by 200 feet.

The new building will be used as a warehouse, allowing room in the old building for an increase to the tank department Additional facilities will mean increased capacity, and increased capacity, an increase to the working force.

GRAND JURY CALLED TO CONSIDER BRIDGE

OLD SITE FAVORED BY BOOMERS FROM VALLEY

The members of the May grand jury who were recalled to Washington yesterday to take action on the approval of the report of viewers on the Brownsville bridge, after listening to testimony yesterday afternoon adjourned until today when a trip was scheduled by automobile to the proposed site as reported by the viewers. After inspecting the site the jury will return to Washington and report its findings, which will have to be either approval or disapproval of the report of the viewers. Of the 24 members of the grand jury 19 reported yesterday and this morning at 8:00 o'clock they started to Brownsville. The county commisioners accompanied the members of the grand jury.

All of the witnesses examined yesterday were of the opinion that this bridge was absolutely nesessary as the ferries there could not handle the crowds that passed over the river there daily. It was also shown that the traffic across the river at that point was greater than at any point along the river with the exception of the Smithfield street bridge in Pittsburg.

MURDER SUSPECT IS UNDER ARREST

Coroner Investigating Victim of Wild Orgie at Bentleyville Sunday

On an information made at Bentleyville charging murder, Joseph Loos was on Monday taken to Monongahela and locked up at that place pending a further investigation into the death of George Morascy whose fatal stabbing Sunday was the climax of one of the wildest days in the history of Bentleyville. The inquest into the death of Morascy was held in the Scurfield undertaking rooms at Monongahela this morning.

Coroner James Heffran spent considerable time in Bentleyville Monday taking evidence in connection with the trouble which culminated in the killing of Morascy. As a result of what he learned he went before Justice M. L. Grubbs and made an information against Loos charging murder. Loos was already under arrest having been captured immediately after the stabbing occurred.

The trouble had its start when big quantities of beer began coming in on Saturday following the regular pay day. Just what was the trouble between Loos and Morascy has not yet come to light. The tragedy occurred in House No. 82 at Weaver and it is alleged that Loos, when the fight was at its height drew a long knife and plunged it twice into the body of Morascy. One wound passed through the left lung, while the second time the steel entered the side just below the heart. Despite his mortal hurts the dying man crawled a quarter of a mile to his boarding house. He was attended by Dr. N. A. Booth and Dr. Emmett Black and rushed to the Me-

TEACHERS MUST BE EXAMINED

School Code Provides for Medical Certificate

CHANGES FORMER SYSTEM

Under the new school code which is now a law no teacher shall be granted a teacher's certificate without first undergoing a medical examination and presenting the medical certificate to the county superintendent before taking the test for certificate. Section 1320 of the new code reads as follows:

"No teacher's certificate shall be granted to any person who has not submitted upon a blank furnished by the superintendent of public instruction, a certificate from a physician legally qualified to practice medicine in this commonwealth, setting forth that said applicant is neither mentally nor physically disqualified by reason of tuberculosis, or any other chronic or acute defect, from successful performance of the duties of a teacher; nor to any person who has not a good moral character, or who is in the habit os using opium or other narcotic drugs in any form or any intoxicating drink as a beverage."

The blank certificates for such medical examinations have been received at the county superintendent's office. Already two examinations have been held and the teachers who took these tests will be required to undergo the medical examination and forward the blank to the superintendent before their certificates entitling them to teach in the schools of this county can be issued.

WOMAN SOLD BOOZE TO SUPPORT CHILDREN

Pathetic Case Comes Up at County Court—Judge Paroles Prisoner

A very pathetis case was before the court at Washington Monday when Mrs. Lilly McCune of Donora, admitted selling liquor without license and on Sunday. Mrs McCune, who is a rather good looking woman, stated that she made these sales in order to save her two little boys, aged six and eight years, from starving. She said that she became ill about two years ago of rheumatism, the disease affecting one hand to such an extent that she could not wash or iron or do housework. She said she had to do something or starve, and she had permitted beer to be brought to her home and had sold some. She said she worked when she was able. Neighbors are looking after her children since she has been in jail. Her husband is dead.

No sentence was pronounced upon her, the court instructing the district attorney to make some further inquiry in the premises. Later in the day a porole was granted the woman, the costs being put on the county. Mrs. N. E. Harris, one of the Donora juvenile court committee, of Donora, agreed to act as parole officer.

GETTING BEHIND TAFT.

While President Taft has refused to yield a point in his battle for reciprocity he has been doing more than any one man in the nation to wield together the conflicting elements in the Republican party. President Taft has refused to abandon his original proposition for the Canadian agreement without amendment or change. He has served notice upon all concerned that his political future does not interest him and that declaration has assembled about him courageous men from every section of the country who have assumed the responsibility for the President's political future.

Even the insurgents have been dropping into line regularly and only within a few days United States Senators Boise Penrose who has charge of the President's battle for the reciprocity pact has been notified by no less than five insurgent senators that in the future they will be good politically. The original purpose of the insurgents was to nominate Senator La Follette if possible.

The courage of the President in defying not only a part of his own party but the entire insurgent contingent has destroyed all the plans of the political disturbers and largely in the interest of their own political futures they have proclaimed their allegience to President Taft and his party.

So far the Democrats have not succeeded in making much headway in [illegible] campaign material through their power in the lower House of Congress. Now that the lines in the Republican party have been closed up by the insurgents abandoning their fight the situation looks better for the Republicans from a political standpoint than it has looked for two years.

HOPE IN COKE.

The formation of a coal and coke company for the purpose of developing the Lilley tract near California cannot help but work to the advantage of Charleroi. When this company is in operation it will employ a large number of people to whom Charleroi will become more or less of a trading center. In addition to this the owners and operators are local people, and the plant will not be dependent upon the caprices of the market upon other holdings of a large corporation with many interests at stake in various parts of the country.

It is to be hoped that the new company will engage in the manufacture of coke and other by-products of bituminous mining. There is little profit today in the mining of bituminous coal, and the extremely small margin realized by operators who mine large contracts at approximately cost and realize a small degree of profit on small and transient contracts, makes the mining situation more or less precarious with shut-downs imminent at all times. There is some profit in coke, and the manufacture of this product would employ more people than the ordinary mining of coal. The greatest hope of the Monongahela valley is the time when coke manufacture will be inaugurated, and it is possible that the new concern may take advantage of this opportunity and become a pineer of the coke industry in this community.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Speaking of opportunities for bright boys who will make an effort to "make good" and really take an interest in their work, George S. Might said:

"I have had boys and boys, hordes of them, in my newspaper delivery business, and it is the hardest thing in the world to get them to attend to business and deliver the papers accurately and regularly. As soon as I found one reliable I made his head boy, to look after the others and see that they performed their duties. As I have been in the business along time my head boys have naturally advanced, until today I can count a number of them who hold responsible pasitions in the business world.

"One of them is a manager of a dry goods store. Another has a drug store of his own and is a bank director besides. One is here in Charleroi, local manager of a big corporation, and another has just started in the news and book business in another town for himself. It is the hardest matter in the world to get reliable boys, and the ones who make good in delivering newspapers have, in my experience, advanced right along in the business world."

"When the Monongahela river slack water system was taken over by the government, a commission of civilians was appointed to hold hearings and take testimony for the transfer," remarked a prominent business man of the valley, in a conversation relative to business opportunities that exist at the present time. "On that commision was one of the Dilworths of Pitsburg, I don't just remember his initials. Mr. Dilworth was a prominent business man and took a leading part in the proceedings Another member of the commission was a Fayette county citizen, a man named Thompson, who sat around and didn't say much, while Dilworth did the most of the talking A few years later a friend of Dilworth's met him one day and said:

"'I was up at Uniontown the other day and met a friend of yours who inquired about you. His name is Thompson, J. V. Thompson, and he's gotten very rich [illegible] lands. He says he served on that commission with you before the government took over the slackwater system of the Monongahela. That gave him a tip, as he figured that the taking off of the river toll would make a substantial advance per acre in coal lands. So he went back home and bought all the coal he could at a low figure, and has gotten enormously wealthy.'

"'The idea,' exclaimed Mr. Dilworth. 'I ought to have seen that opportunity myself. I remember that when the commission was held I did all the talking, and Thompson sat for the most part with his hat pulled down over his eyes, figuring with an old stub of a pencil on the back of an envelope. He saw the chance which I let slip and got rich. I never got a d——d cent out of the whole business.'"

It may be remarked in passing that J. V. Thompson is now a multimillionaire and ranks in the John D. Rockefeller and J. Pierpont Morgan class.

Beallsville

The marriage last week of Miss Queene Sharp and John Leonard came as a surprise to many of the people of the community. Thursday evening at the Sharp home a reception was held in honor of the young couple and on Friday evening a kitchen shower was given them by Mr. and Mrs Leonard.

This week on Thursday in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Linton, will be solemnized the marriage of Miss Lauretta Linton and Wiliam Sanford Stroud, two well known young people of the community A large number of invitations have been sent out.

The new station for Bentleyville will materialize soon, it is stated. Representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad company have been there the last week, making the necessary arrangements for the new structure which will cost in the neighborhood of $7,000. The station is needed very badly and some action was taken a few months since in hopes of securing the new building. Heretofore an old box car was used as a result much pilfering was done.

The date set for the Bentleyville camp meting is from August 18th to the 28th both dates inclusive. The campmeetings at Bentleyville have been held since the close of the Civil war and are always largely attended by people from all parts of the county The metings are held under the auspices of the Union Holiness Association.

Bentleyville next year will have the convention of the Epworth League. The delegates from Beallsville were Rev. H. C. Millington, Mrs. J. E. Richardson, Mrs B. M. Crouch.

H. H. Dawson of Beallsville of the firm of Dawson & Young, marble and granite company met with a most distressing accident at the home of his son-in-law, I. N. Young, Saturday when he lost the thumb of his left hand. His other hand was also badly injured.

Manganese and Its Uses.

Manganese is one of the substances which had long been used in the arts before its existence as an independent metal was recognized. From prehistoric times it was employed as a coloring material, but it was not known to be a distinct metal until 1774. In India the primitive smiths used it as a flux and as an alloy for holding iron and bronze. Today its power as an oxidizer, rendering it a most important disinfectant, and its value as a chemical reagent, as well as its increasing use as an alloy, caused an active search to be made for its ores. It is widely distributed, forming about one-thousandth of the substance of the earth's crust.

Ancient Rome's Libraries.

The libraries of ancient Rome were immense and splendid. Lucullus, whose name is associated with table luxuries, expended much of his wealth on books. His library, says Plutarch, had "walks, galleries and cabinets open to all visitors" Julius Caesar proposed to open this library definitely to the public.

How were these vast libraries, in addition to the book shops, filled? With his trained staff of readers and transcribers, a publisher could turn out an edition of any work at very cheap rates, and almost at a moment's notice. There was no initial expense of typesetting before a single copy could be produced, no ruinous extras in the shape of printers' corrections. The manuscript came from the author; the publisher handed it over to his slaves, and if a book of modest dimensions, the complete edition could be ready, if necessary, within twenty-four hours. Actually, then, books were produced and sold more easily and quickly in ancient Rome than they are in modern London.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

The "Iliad" Not a Myth.

The fall of Troy after a ten year siege by the Grecian princes about 1184 B. C. has long been considered as a rather mythical foundation for Homer's immortal epic, the "Iliad." But in 1876 the excavations of Schliemann on the reputed site of Troy brought to light under the ashes of two superincumbent fortress cities the remains answering to the descriptions of Homer and a hidden vault containing goblets, bowls, vases, gems, jewels, armes de luxe and like articles in gold, silver and bronze. These treasures are now generally acknowledged to be the veritable remnants of the once vast riches of Priam, which, although depleted by ten years of costly warfare in the purchase of supplies and mercenaries and the final sack of the ruined city, were thus preserved to enrich the museums of Europe and greatly increase our realization of the wealth and art of that ancient Ilium, which we have hitherto been disposed to consider a poet's dream.—Charles Winslow Hall in National Magazine.

A Bit Thick.

Parisians drink scarcely any water other than mineral water. The Seine water has a shocking reputation.

John Raphael, Paris correspondent for several London papers, said that one afternoon a pretty actress met her doctor at a dress rehearsal in a boulevard theater.

"Look here," she said, "I am quite sure that all this mineral water I drink, since you have forbidden wine, is dreadfully bad for me. I want your permission to drink filtered Seine water now."

"Very well," replied the doctor, "if you insist. But, mind, you must chew it well."

Work of the Locomotive Fireman.

To a husky young man shoveling twenty tons of coal a day may not sound like a terrible undertaking, but that is because he fails to appreciate the difference between shoveling that quantity in the course of a ten hour day, standing on a steady footing and pausing for a moment whenever he feels like it to gaze at the scenery or light a cigarette and trying to keep his balance on a jolting, jerking, plunging steel deck which tries ceaselessly to pitch him head first into the side of the cab, while with legs spread wide apart he humps over a scoop shovel working with frantic energy to get coal into the firebox fast enough to keep steam up. While the engine is running the fireman must be straddled out on the deck, working continually to the limit of his strength, for ordinarily he will have to get from two and a half to three tons of coal into the firebox every hour. Three and a half tons is generally regarded as the limit of a fireman's capacity, but this has been greatly exceeded on the fastest trains.—Technical World Magazine.

The Music of Birds.

Birds are usually accounted the most musical of animals, yet it is very much of a task to set their notes to music. The reason is that birds are utterly negligent of the laws of harmony. There is not one of them, it is safe to say, that knows the difference between a major third and a dominant chord. This deficiency in musical knowledge is rather surprising when we consider how beautifully the birds sing and may be used as an argument to show that a theoretical knowledge is a humbug. But if birds knew more about harmony their songs could all be set down and quite a decent revenue derived from the sale thereof. Another reason why it is difficult to put the melody of the song birds into notes is that the quality of the tone is unlike any musical instrument. This is true of all birds except the thrush, whose song descends for the first three notes in perfect seconds and with much purity of tone.—From Old Scrap Book.

The Earliest Cold Storage.

In Macaulay's essay on "Lord Bacon" he points out that in 1626 the subject of his memoir tried the experiment of stuffing a fowl with snow to prevent it from putrefying and in carrying out the work caught cold, from which he died. Macaulay adds: "In the last letter that he ever wrote, with fingers which, as he said, could not steadily hold a pen, he did not omit to mention that the experiment of the snow had succeeded excellently well" If, however, we turn to nature there are instances in Siberia of mammoths preserved in ice so that their flesh is still eatable from a period probably coeval with the first appearance of man on this globe. If the Romans brought to their banquets the dainties of the known world, had they not some knowledge of cold storage?—E. H. Hill in London Spectator.

The Misuse of Vinegar.

Dr. Mansell Mauilin, M. A., writing in the London Lancet on the causes of gastric ulcer, mentions vinegar as one cause "In many of these instances, especially those which occur in young women, the effect of this chronic septic poisoning is intensified by the habit so many of them have of swallowing quantities of vinegar. Information with regard to this is very difficult to obtain and is never volunteered. It has to be drawn out bit by bit, but I have met with many instances in which a pint a day has been consumed and a few in which the quantity was occasionally much larger. The effect is probably greater because it is often taken between meals on an empty stomach under the curious impression that it will improve the complexion"

Drilled to Perfection.

From drill man gets accustomed to doing under any circumstances what has been hammered into his brain time after time till it becomes second nature to him. Charles XII. of Sweden, "the madman of the north," ripped most of Europe up the back again and again because his soldiers were drilled to perfection before he let them take the field at a time when there was great neglect of drill in other armies. He valued 1,000 well drilled fighters above 10,000 not so well drilled, and, madman or genius, his judgment was vindicated repeatedly in terrible battles. One night Charles XII. was surprised in Poland by an attacking army of 8,000 when his scant force of 600 was sleeping like the dead from the exhaustion of a hard march. Before his outposts and sentinels could be driven in his small band was aroused, mounted, formed in battle line—all in pitchy blackness—and swinging into a fierce charge upon the enemy By daylight the Russians and Poles, who had thought to eat him up, were virtually annihilated.—New York Press.

Dr. Johnson's Revenge.

Osborne, irritated by what he thought an unnecessary delay on the part of Johnson, went one day into the room where Johnson was sitting and abused him in the most liberal manner. Johnson heard him some time unmoved, but at last, losing all patience, he seized a huge folio and, aiming a blow at the bookseller's head, succeeded in sending him sprawling to the floor Osborne alarmed the family by his cries, but Johnson, placing his foot on his breast, would not let him stir until he had exposed him in that situation and then left him with this triumphant expression: "Lie there, thou son of dullness, ignorance and obscurity."—From Kearsley's "Anecdotes."

Those Wedding Celebrations.

"It's a ridiculous idea," a man who has been married eleven months tomorrow confided to us, "to celebrate your diamond wedding when you have been married seventy-five years. I'm going to have it reversed. The diamond wedding should come first, then the golden, and so on Let's have these things while they do us some good."

He is right at that. And yet social custom is going to compel this impecunious couple to celebrate their paper wedding next month. They need a few rugs and gold pieces, but somebody will bring 'em writing paper and a new deck of cards.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Entertaining Royalty.

Nothing puts a bigger feather in the cap of a society hostess, says the London Saturday Journal, or at the same time causes her more anxious cares and thought rather than mere expenditure than the presence at one of her dinners or dances in the huge Mayfair mansion of a member of the royal family—most of all the king and queen. The entertaining of royalty is one of the most delicate triumphs the society woman, whether she be a duchess or merely a millionairess, can achieve. It has a code of etiquette all to itself—a code which must be rigidly observed or no hope is there of ever securing another visit from a royal guest of the reigning house. The number of titled and untitled guests bidden to meet the sovereign at, say, a dinner party is strictly limited and of course highly select. On one occasion $20,000 was spent by a hostess in entertaining a crowned head for a week end, while another example is that of a certain baronet who had a marble staircase put in his house solely because of an approaching visit from the late king.

NESTS IN COLONIES.

The biggest bird's nest in the world, not excepting the stork's, is built by the African grosbeak. It is really 100 nests or more bound together with closely interwoven sticks, vines and strands of coarse grass and is not built by a single pair of birds, but by a colony of them. It is of such enormous size that at a little distance it is often mistaken for one of the native huts built in the trees so frequently found in wild tropical countries where man eating animals abound, and the only way to sleep in safety is to "roost high."

The birds usually select a thorn tree probably because of the protection afforded by the sharp, long thorns against marauders. All around the nest the roof of sticks, thatched with dry grass, projects to let the rain run off. A deep fringe of grass hangs from this cornice like a curtain to keep out any stray drops. These great nests are added to from year to year, each pair of mated birds building on the main nest. Sometimes the nest becomes too heavy, and the branch breaks or the great mass of sticks falls to the ground, destroyed by its own [illegible] than an English sparrow and just as gregarious.—New York Press.

Honesty Extraordinary.

A traveler writing in an Italian magazine says that the Swiss canton of Ticino is inhabited by the most honest folk it is possible to imagine. In most of the Ticinese villages, the writer says, the oldest inhabitants do not remember any case of thieving, however petty, within a lifetime. Lost objects when found must never be taken away, they must be left where they were dropped or placed in a conspicuous position so that the rightful owner can find his property more easily. The case is cited of an American woman tourist who lost her purse on an excursion in the Val Capriasca. The purse contained gold coin and a jeweled watch. Upon returning from her trip she found the purse with its contents intact on a little heap of leaves, so placed that it could not fail to attract her attention.—New York Sun.

The Parsees of India.

It was at a point near the ancient city of Surat that the Parsees first landed in India when driven out of Persia by their Mohammedan conquerors eleven centuries ago. Few things are more remarkable than the manner in which this small community has retained its religion and racial characteristics unchanged during that long period. The peculiar style of headdress worn by the Parsees is said to have been made compulsory by the Hindu king of India when the Parsees first obtained refuge in that country, and they have used it ever since. Today the Parsees are the leading commercial nation of India.

Kean and Macready.

When Edmund Kean and Macready, intense rivals, played in the same pieces at Drury Lane it was usual to consult them in the course of the evening as to what they would appear in next. One night when the prompter was sent to ask Mr Macready what he would play with Mr Kean the great tragedian frowned upon him till he blushed. "Sir," he roared, "how should I know what the man would like to play?" The prompter retired to seek the desired information from Mr Kean. "Sir," said Mr Kean sharply, "how should I know what the fellow can play?"

Things Are Changed Now.

The Fourth of July, the day of our arrival at Albany, was the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, and on our arrival we were told that great preparations were making for its celebration.

Our landlord, as soon as he found out who we were, immediately came to us to request that we would excuse the confused state in which his house was, as this was the anniversary day of "American independence," or, as some indeed more properly call it, "American repentance." We were all of us not a little surprised at this address, and from such a person instances, however, are not wanting of people openly declaring that they have never enjoyed so much quiet and happiness in their own homes since the Revolution as they did when the states were the colonies of Great Britain. Among the planters of Virginia I have heard language of this sort more than once.—From "Travels Through the States of North America," by Isaac Weld, Jr., 1795.

A Wedding Hoax.

There have been many foolish hoaxes since the days of Theodore Hook, but few so cruel as one mentioned by Bram Stoker in his book, "Famous [illegible] about to be married in Birmingham when those officiating were startled by the delivery of a telegram from London with the message 'Stop marriage at once. His wife and children have arrived in London and will come on to Birmingham.' The bride fainted, and the bridegroom was frantically perturbed at thus summarily being provided with a wife and family. But it was useless—the unhappy man had to make the best of his way through an exasperated crowd, full of sympathy for the wronged girl. Inquiry, however, showed her friends that the whole thing was a hoax—possibly worked by some revengeful rival of the man whose happiness had been so unexpectedly deferred."

The Archbishop's Shirts.

One of the archbishops of Bordeaux, Mgr. de Sangay, was remarkable for his charity, giving to the poor, as he did, nearly everything in his possession. It happened at one time that he was without linen, and when his servants spoke of buying what he needed he put them off, saying always, "We will see about it." Then the good old woman in charge of his wardrobe made use of stratagem. "Monsignore," she said, "I come to ask your charity for a good work." "What is it, my good Jeanne?" "With your lordship's permission, I wish to spend some hours in which I have not much to do in making shirts for a poor old man who is sadly in need of them. Perhaps you would pay me for the stuff." Indeed, the good old man expects as much from you." "With the greatest pleasure," said the archbishop. "Here, this is all the money I have. Take it and get what you need." By this means he was provided with shirts, and he could not refrain from laughing when he learned the explanation of his faithful old servant's request.—London Globe.

The Old Time Senators.

A recent overhauling of a desk in the office of the District of Columbia health officer brought to light a small volume entitled "The Medical Register of the District," which contained a complete list of the senators of the Thirty-ninth congress, giving their weight, height and head and chest measurements. The author of the book, Dr. J. M. Toner, says in explanation of the table:

"It shows that in all the points observed our senators exceed the average of mankind in all parts of the world as well as the average of our own country."

From the figures given it appears that the tallest senators at that time came from Kentucky, the shortest from New Hampshire and West Virginia. The average height was five feet ten and a half inches, and the senatorial heads, "measured a little lower than the hat is generally worn," showed an average circumferance of twenty-two and a half inches. Fourteen of the forty senators were six feet tall.—Washington Star.

Travel at Home.

"Whenever I get the wanderlust," says the philosopher, "I get the cook to burn the steak and serve me some coffee that tastes as though it had brown pepper in it. Then I sit in the most uncomfortable chair in the house and try to read a newspaper in a poor light. I then go outdoors and let a cinder blow in my eye, then go back in and go to bed on a cot that is four inches too short and a foot too narrow for me, with covers that gather themselves about my waist and leave my feet bare, while a clever contrivance sends alternate hot and cold blasts across me. Next morning I have indigestion, a sore eye and a cold and a fine assortment of aches and pains, but I also have all the sensations of having been on a trip and am spared the worry of getting home again, for I am already there."—Life.

THE CONFEDERATE SOLDIER.

An Incident That Marked His Spirit and Independence.

In his "Glimpses of the Confederate Army" in the American Review of Reviews Randolph H. McKim writes:

"It seems to me as I look back that one of the things which stood out strongly in the Confederate army was the independence and the initiative of the individual soldier. It would have been a better army in the field if it had been welded together by a stricter discipline, but this defect was largely atoned for by the strong individuality of the units in the column. It was not easy to demoralize a body composed of men who thought and acted in a spirit of independence in battle.

"As an illustration of the spirit of the private soldier I recall an incident to this effect. Major General Gordon had organized a strong column to make a night attack on Grant's lines at Petersburg. When he was ready to move and the order to advance was given a Big Texan stepped out of the ranks and said:

"'General Gordon, this column can't move before 1 a. m. The men have a truce with the Yanks, and it ain't up till 1 o'clock.'

"The column did not move till that hour. [illegible] taken command and the major general recognized his authority."

PONGEES HARD TO MATCH.

Pongee silk is the undyed silk of silkworms fed on the leaves of scrub oak chiefly, though other trees are used in some portions of the pongee district. The silk is produced almost exclusively in Shantung province and portions of north China immediately adjacent.

The real pongee cloth, made of this uncolored specially produced silk, is distinct from the pongees of commerce made in all colors from other silk. Each piece of cloth is made from a particular lot of silk, and therefore each piece varies from all other pieces in exact quality, weight and fineness and in a slight degree in color and other qualities.

There are certain general grades of cloth, certain varieties of weave, certain popular weights, etc., but women shopping in Chinese pongees find it very difficult to match pieces, and on the face of things it is practically impossible to furnish any great number of pieces of a certain weight, grade and quality such as a modern clothing manufacturing establishment would require to standardize a certain line of garments from that particular cloth.—New York Sun.

Located His Station.

There was an absentminded bishop in western Ontario, who was constantly finding himself in awkward situations, on account of his extreme abstraction. On a certain occasion he was traveling from London in a northerly direction and found when the conductor approached him that he had forgotten where he was to go. The conductor suggested that he telegraph from the next station and find out his destination. It was before the days of long distance telephones, and the bishop telegraphed to his wife from the first station, "Where was I going?" to be answered at the following station. The answer came, "Exeter; be sure to get off there." The bishop then beamed at the anxious conductor and remarked placidly: "These little difficulties always turn out satisfactorily."—Argonaut.

German Pedigree Book.

There is in Germany what is known as the "German Pedigree Book," or "Deutsches Geschlechterbuch." The purpose of the pedigree book, according to a Berlin correspondent, is to record the ancestry not of nobles, but of bourgeois persons who can prove that they are of genuine middle class or working class ancestry and have no noble blood in their veins. The editor explains in his preface that, while many German nobles "out of court and material considerations have not kept their blood pure, there are many good business class families which have managed to do so." By thus encouraging the proper pride of such families the pedigree book is doing much to eradicate the traditional envy of the nobles.

It Depends on the Dog.

Two Broadway business men met before a bar. They were good friends.

"I'm worried a little," said one. "My chauffeur ran over a dog today and killed it."

"Oh, I wouldn't worry about a little thing like that," said the other. "The dog probably got in the way. These dogs are a pest."

"But it was your dog."

"What!" came from the second. "My dog? I'm sorry, but that will cost you $100. That chauffeur of yours is too careless. I insist on the hundred, understand."—New York Telegraph.

Cross Purposes.

"Can you tell me something about the game laws around here?" asked the stranger in Crimson Gulch.

"Well," replied Three Fingered Sam, "I could, but my advice to you would be if you don't know the rules of a game don't try to play it."—Washington Star.

UNIVERSITY OF FRANCE.

Essentially the Same Today as When Established by Napoleon.

In the United States there are many universities which are free from state control, but in France there is only one university, and it is an absolute instrument of the state. It is true that there are schools of higher learning, which were founded in 1870 as universities, but five years afterward the title was withdrawn, and they are now called "Instituts." They are five in number and are located in Paris, Lille, Lyons, Toulouse and Angers.

But the University of France is an entirely different organization. It is the official school. It is centralized in Paris and has under it a vast multitude of establishments, faculties, college and primary schools, distributed over the whole surface of the country. Directly or indirectly they all depend on the government.

The university was established by Napoleon, and in spite of certain modifications which it has undergone during years it is the same today in its essential elements as the day he founded it. Just as he established the entire civil administration, with its prefects, subprefects, judges, ministers of finance, so he created in 1806 this vast educational organization, with its countless professors, who control the entire intellectual training of France.—America.

Self Restraint.

"Doctor, I've come to see you about my wife. I'm afraid there's something serious the matter with her."

"I'm sorry to hear that. What are her symptoms?"

"Why, the other day, when I was out of town, she had occasion to go to my office, and there she found several letters marked 'Private' that she didn't open."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The First Comedy.

The first recorded comedy was played at Athens B. C. 578, when Susarion and Dolon, the earliest traveling actors, performed a comedy of Susarion's composition on a movable stage mounted upon four wheels. The new form of play was so successful that the actors were rewarded by the grateful populace with a cask of wine and a basket of figs. Susarion belonged to Megaris, a state of ancient Greece, whose inhabitants were celebrated for their coarse humor and who, in their villages during the evenings, were wont to hold what they called a comus, really a revel, in which impromptu acting, coupled with buffoonery, played a considerable part. From this word we have our comedy.

Considerate Revolutionists.

The wildest and most ferocious revolutionaries I have known have often been in private life merciful, tender, unselfish, considerate.—T. P. O'Connor in London T. P.'s Weekly.

Getting the Exact Spot.

An emergency call from a policeman for a tape measure kept two women waiting in the dressmaker's parlor for five minutes. There were other tape measures there which the dressmaker might have used, but she was too busy pondering the circumstance that had suddenly converted her into an ally of the police department. Presently the policeman returned the tape.

"What did you want it for?" she asked.

"To help find the right place to shoot a horse with a broken leg," he said. "The vital spot is just three inches above that little swirl in his forehead where a dozen crowns seem to meet. I am not very good at guessing, so we thought it safest to find the exact spot with a tape measure."—New York Sun.

Music of the Drum.

All musical authorities have agreed that when used in a proper way the drum is thoroughly musical. The common snare or side drum is freely used in musical composition. A large number of drummers performing simultaneously out of doors produce good music. In this connection Berlioz, the composer, pointed out that a sound that was insignificant when heard singly, such as the clink of one or two muskets at shoulder arms or the thud as the butt comes to the ground at ground arms, becomes brilliant and attractive if performed by a thousand men together.

Crumpled Them.

We observe that the man's fingers are all twisted and bent into the most uncouth shapes.

"Poor fellow!" we say to our friend. "Evidently he is a victim of rheumatism."

"No," our friend explains. "He is deaf and dumb and has been trying to talk Scotch dialect on his fingers."—

PRESBYTERIANS BEAT CATHOLICS

HOW IT ALL OCCURRED

After twisting, turning, landing and pulling, that thing called luck consorted finally with the First Presbyterians Monday night and together with a few solid bingles when a few solid bingles meant more than ordinary, helped capture the game from the Catholics. First Presbyterians 5, Cathholics 4.

There might be considerable said about the game; also there might be considerable left unsaid. It looked as though the Catholics tied up the contest in the first inning, when Oates, Deitz and Newton scored on a base on balls, an error and two doubles.

But not so, Cassius. Luck sat on the Presbyterians bench next time, and Wagner and McGowan scored on a base on balls, McGowan's double and Smith's single.

After that luck sat in the grandstand awhile to watch things move. Then just for fun, he came down with the Presbyterians again. McGowan singled, and he was brought in by Provance with a double, in the fourth. In the fifth Oates scored for the Catholics. He was safe on a fielder's choice and came home on a hit by Mangan.

In the fifth the game was honest Injun won by the Presbyterians. Ruggles was safe on an error, stole second and scored on another error. Oller scored likewise Getting first when the first baseman dropped a throw he completed the circuit on an error. Score:

• • •

Manager Fred Pieper of the Presbyterians registered a protest on account of Newton being in the game claiming he was a professional.

• • •

* * *

Walter Urban, who is suffering from a bad ankle went in to bat for Wheeler in the seventh, plainly to get a base on balls. And he accomplished his object.

* * *

"Bob" Newton shows improved form over last year, owing to his training at Lima.

* * *

Deitz's batting stock has taken a decided slump. Out of seven times at bat in the last two games he hasn't got the sign of a hit.

* * *

* * *

Jack Mathias informed the Presbyterians that he was umpiring when they raised a noise at one of his decisions, and that if they didn't like it, they could simply make the best of it.

* * *

Newton and Buchanan captured four of the five Catholic hits.

morial hospital at Monongahela where he died at 5:30 o'clock Monday evening.

The murder was the climax of a wild night and a still wilder day. Two christenings which were featured by fierce fights added to the terror of Sunday. In these fights many were more or less slightly injured and seven men were arrested. These seven at a hearing before Burgess W. M. Johnson of Bentleyville were all fined for disorderly conduct while two of them were fined by Justice Grubbs for assault and battery. All settled. It is expected that at least three more arrests will be made.
